Law and War: An International Humanitarian Law Workshop

hosted by The Human Rights Program of the University of Virginia School of Law presented by

ICRC

University of Virginia School of Law

American Red Cross

Dates
Saturday March 20th—Sunday March 21st. Applications must be submitted by February 18th, 2010.

Location
University of Virginia School of Law

Content
This workshop features lectures and hands-on exercises that guide participants through an intensive examination of international humanitarian law (IHL) with a focus on its application to combatants and civilians. Sessions will be led by legal professionals from the ICRC, law professors, staff Judge Advocates and international law practitioners. Topics include:

- Means and Methods of Warfare
- IHL and International Human Rights
- Enforcement of IHL

Eligibility
The workshop is available to law and graduate students in programs related to international law and policy.

Costs
The workshop is free for participants. However, students will be responsible for their own transportation, lodging, and food. Some meals may be provided by the program organizers or other program sponsors.

Application
Applications are available by email on request. Registration is limited. Completed applications, including a statement of interest, must be received by UVA Human Rights Program by email or mail no later than February 18th. Acceptance decisions will be made based on applicants’ relevant course and field experience and the statement of interest.

Accommodations
For participants coming from beyond Charlottesville, there are a number of hotels conveniently located near the hosting facility. If attendees are interested, we may also help arrange for boarding with local participants.

Contact
Human Rights Program
580 Massie Rd.
Charlottesville, VA 22903
jw7dp@virginia.edu