Family Law

UVA’s FAMILY LAW CENTER creates opportunities to cultivate and exchange premiere family law scholarship on these topics through lectures and symposia.

FAMILY LAW raises questions of social justice with profound personal significance: Who is a parent? Who can marry? What are the rights of nonmarital couples? Who can get an abortion? Legal regulation of family life can set the financial terms of divorce, determine a person’s immigration status, or remove a child from the home for abuse or neglect.

In exploring family law’s practical and policy issues at Virginia, students benefit from the financial terms of divorce, determine a person’s immigration status, or remove a child from the home for abuse or neglect.
